Summary of reasons for decision:

The computer moving image file is deemed as objectionable because it promotes and supports the exploitation of children for sexual purposes. It consists of a video clip that shows a girl, who appears to be an older child, in a highly sexualised manner, performing sexual acts on herself at the instruction of an adult. The publication encourages the viewer to regard children as sexually available and presents them as a legitimate form of adult sexual interest.

The Classification Office has considered the effects of the New Zealand Bill of Rights Act 1990 on the application of the classification criteria. The classification of this publication interferes with the freedom of expression, but this is an outcome that is consistent with Parliament's intention that publications falling under s3(2) of the Films, Videos, and Publications Classification Act 1993 are deemed to be objectionable. The classification is also a reasonable limitation on the freedom of expression that reflects the concern of a free and democratic society to limit the availability of publications that promote and support the exploitation of children for sexual purposes.
